

Dear members of the ACP,

You are invited to join the seminars on the ethics and praxis of psychoanalysis (which is a section of our course of studies). Please contact me if you are interested.

We shall commence our work on the ethics and praxis of psychoanalysis on Saturday March 8, 2014, 8–11am (8am sharp), at the Treacy Conference Centre, 126 The Avenue, Parkville. An outline of the program and a list of texts can be found in the Centre's Web page.

I will conduct the first four seminars and Veronica Sinclair will be in charge of the remaining three. [Veronica's email: veronica.sinclair@bigpond.com]

The topics and texts to be studied are at the core of psychoanalysis and the formation of a psychoanalyst. Yet they concern matters that have occupied humans since the advent of civilization – not only philosophers and other thinkers, but also the ordinary peoples of all times. Hence the significance of the ethical dimension of our praxis, brought to us in concrete forms by each of our patients and present in each of our own acts.

As we have established in previous seminars, exchanges (in the form of reflections, comments, questions or papers) in between our meetings are most welcome. They have become an active part of our style of study. You are invited to start sending your contributions right now.

I look forward to another productive and enjoyable series of seminars.
